The denim doc is in!

Shopping for jeans is a little like dating: You have to kiss a lot of frogs to find The One. (It's almost as stressful, too!) Meet your matchmaker, SELF senior fashion market editor Lindsay T. Huggins—that's her, right. She'll reduce your toad count with tips on how to make runway trends work for the real world. Happy hunting!

TREND FLORALS

Denim is bloomin', from dainty petals in neutral palettes (office-friendly) to bold tropical flowers (weekendworthy!). Curvy? Avoid large prints, which emphasize your backside.

TREND CROPPED

Short on length but long on versatility! The hem hits just above the ankle, showing off pretty flats or sexy heels—and they're still long enough to tuck into boots.

DEAR DENIM DOCTOR

QI have a flat butt. Which brand will give my rear some shape?—Vanessa Burns, Anaheim, California

A Try the sculpting jeans from James Jeans Couture Collection. Contoured bands hug the natural curves along your waist, giving the derriere a rounded look, no padding. Compression linings also help define a sexier rear view.

TREND DENIM DRESS

The ideal comfy-chic option for casual Fridays, a tailored shirt dress-à la Pippa (right)-mixes office polish and weekend ease.

 $oldsymbol{\Lambda}$ SELF staffers of all sizes love Yummie by Heather Thomson Denim. A higher front waist keeps tummies tucked; stretch fabric expands or contracts, depending on who is filling the seat.

TREND FLARED

Unlike last year's high-waisted bell-bottoms, 2012's flares are more wearable: The leg widens midcalf (for a less extreme angle), and the lowrise waist flatters women with hips.

STYLE FLASH label to love

Denim & Supply Ralph Lauren debuts chic denim basics (like this sweet skirt) and nondenim items (cue the cute hoodie) that have the same relaxed yet modern look as jeans and can easily be thrown into the denim mix—all at a nice price.
